Why Recreation Is Important

- Exercise – Studies have shown that regular exercise can help prevent diseases, control your weight, increase strength, improve stamina, help you sleep better, and just make you feel better in general.
- Relaxation – Calm your mind, and you'll lower your blood pressure.
- Group participation – Participating in any kind of group activity – a class, theatrical production, community league sport, or pick-up game – has all kinds of benefits. Group activities help you build your social skills and social networks.

MEMBER STORIES

CAU Member, Darin Anderson, has truly made large efforts towards community integration, proud member of CAU.

Elizabeth, NJ – July 1, 2015 –

Darin Anderson has a passion for helping people with disabilities get into gyms so that they can work out and feel good about themselves. Recently Darin has taken his enthusiasm to a whole new level by helping at the Caldwell Pediatric Therapy Center & New Jersey All People Equal (NJ APE) - In Play Programs. NJAPE advocates for the inclusive recreation, fitness, adapted physical education, and wellness services for individuals who are differently able.

At the Caldwell Pediatric Therapy Center, Darin works and helps children who are autistic. He makes exercising fun for the children, but makes sure that they keep active. He also talks to parents about his experiences with therapy. He wants to help parents fight for rights as well as to get funding for more fitness in school districts.

Not only does he help children, but Darin is also very eager to assist CAU members with gym memberships. He believes that gyms will help members with their frustrations and their self- esteem.
